OVER THE FENCEPOST

Prince William County Hosts Black History Month Events

Prince William County will be hosting a number of events in February to commemorate Black History Month.

The historic Lucasville School will be open weekends in February and will kick off the month of celebration with the Ebenezer Baptist Church Choir singing at 11 a.m. on Feb. 4. During the following weekends in February, there will be exhibits, lectures and crafts at the school highlighting African-American history in Prince William County.

The one-room, reconstructed 19th-century school, located at 10516 Godwin Drive, served first- through sixth-grade "colored" students in the Lucasville area from 1885 until it closed in 1926.

The PWC Black History Month Committee will host a program, "Accomplishments in Black Education," on Thursday, Feb. 9, from 11 a.m. until 12 p.m. at the Hylton Performing Arts Center, 10960 George Mason Circle, Manassas. The program is free and all are welcome to attend.

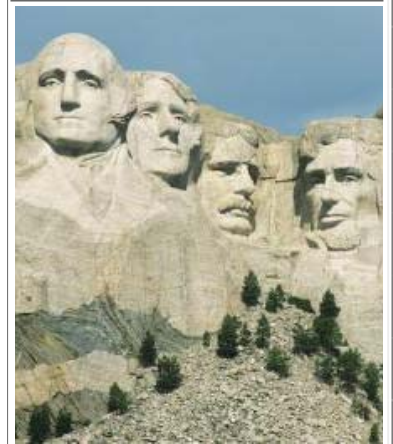

On Feb. 18, the Ben Lomond Historic Site, located at 10321 Sudley Manor Drive, will host "Everyday Full of Work: The African-American Experience at Ben Lomond." The special guided tours will give visitors the chance to explore the historic home, along with the original slave quarters, to learn about the lives of slaves living at Ben Lomond before the Civil War. The house, which was built in the 1830s, served as a Confederate hospital after the Battle of First Manassas in 1861. The tours, between 11 a.m. and 4 p.m., will take people through spaces not ordinarily open to the public. The tours cost $5. Children under 6 will be admitted free.

"The Freedom Museum: Prince William County's Best Kept Secret" will be the topic of discussion at the Old Manassas Courthouse at 7 p.m. on Feb. 23. A representative from the museum, which is on the grounds of the Manassas Airport, will present a program about soldiers who went to war in WWI and WWII. There will be photographs, letters and personal belongings of Prince William County residents who served in those wars. The Old Manassas Courthouse is located at 9248 Lee Ave. in Manassas.

The Barnes House Hard Hat Tour, between 11 a.m. and 1 p.m. on Feb. 25, will give people the chance to see Prince William County's newest "old" building. The house was built by Eppa Barnes and Amanda Lambert Barnes after they were married in 1875. The African-American couple raised 12 children in the home that now stands, restored and rebuilt, at the Montclair Community Library at 5049 Waterway Drive. Visitors will learn about the family's history during Reconstruction, the period following the Civil War.

Whistle While You Work
Why you will love being a lifeguard

Lifeguards Who Became Famous: Sean Connery (aka James Bond), Clint Eastwood, Jake Gyllenhall, President Ronald Reagan and rock star Gene Simmons.

For the rest of your life... You will jump to attention when you hear a whistle.

Save yourself From a boring summer, and stop your parents nagging you to get a job.

Lifeguards get respect Your experience will impress colleges and future employers who value real world experience and leadership abilities.

Best part of the job: Long pants are optional, tank tops are allowed and you wear flip flops.

What other job can you say... My 3 piece suit is a bathing suit, shorts and a whistle; I get an awesome tan; and every day is different.

88 Year Old Louis Demers holds The Guinness Book of World Records as the oldest active lifeguard. He has been an active lifeguard since 1954.

Make terrific friends You will become friends with your coworkers and spend the off season looking forward to the next summer lifeguarding together.

Get paid! To spend the summer at the pool getting a tan in a place dedicated to fun.

"I love being a Lifeguard most when I can proudly say I saved someone's life."

Prince William Chamber Scholarship Program

Through the Prince William Chamber Scholarship Program, the Chamber seeks to support higher education by awarding scholarships to graduating high school seniors who have demonstrated a commitment to both academic success and community involvement. Three (3) scholarships in amounts of up to $2,500 each will be awarded.

Eligibility Criteria Highlights:

- Current Chamber member company employee or the dependent of an employee; this includes staff of all Prince William County, Cities of Manassas and Manassas Park schools (elementary, middle & high schools).
- Graduating high school senior with plans to enroll in an accredited community college, trade school, college or university;
- Cumulative minimum GPA of 3.0 or higher;
- Demonstrates leadership and commitment to the community

Completed application packages, including essay, transcripts and recommendation letters, are due to the Chamber no later than 5 pm on February 20, 2017.

For more information, click here: <http://pwchamber.org/councils-committees/committees/education-committee/scholarship/>

NOVEC and Regional Electric Cooperatives are Offering Scholarships

Northern Virginia Electric Cooperative and Virginia, Maryland & Delaware Association of Electric Cooperatives are accepting applications for higher-education scholarships from high school and home school seniors who receive electricity from electric cooperatives. Applications for NOVEC's scholarships are due by the close of business on March 13, 2017, and the VMDAEC applications are due Feb. 10, 2017.

NOVEC Scholarship Program

The NOVEC Scholarship Program will award $1,500 scholarships to qualified graduating public high school students in NOVEC's service territory in Fairfax, Fauquier, Loudoun, Prince William and Stafford counties, and the City of Manassas Park. An additional $1,500 scholarship will go to a student in NOVEC's service territory who either attends private school or is home schooled.

From the scholarship winners, selection committees will choose the overall outstanding student for the $1,500 J. Manley Garber Scholarship. The recipient of this scholarship will receive a total of $3,000 to help with his or her college education.

Selection committees will look for students who have demonstrated scholastic achievement, community service, work experience, and leadership skills.

A scholarship applicant must:

1. Be a college-bound high school senior whose parents or guardians receive electric service from NOVEC.
2. Have at least a 3.5 grade-point average on a 4.0 scale and submit an official transcript that includes first-semester grades.
3. Submit Student Achievement Test (SAT) scores; unofficial SAT scores will be accepted.
4. Demonstrate a wide range of participation and leadership in extracurricular activities, community service, and/or work experience.
5. Submit two letters of recommendation — one from a high school official, such as a teacher or counselor, and one from a community member, such as a church or Scout leader.
6. Submit a 400-word typed autobiographical essay.
7. List the colleges/universities he or she has applied to or the one the student plans to attend.
8. Complete the NOVEC scholarship application and submit all required materials no later than March 13, 2017. The entire application process will be online through AwardSpring™ — a secure website. Applicants may access the website through a link at www.novec.com.

For more information about the NOVEC Scholarship Program, contact Donna Snellings at scholarships@novec.com.

VMDAEC Scholarships

A high school or home-schooled senior — whose parents or guardians are electric cooperative members in Virginia, Delaware, and part of Maryland — may apply for a scholarship from the VMDAEC Educational Scholarship Foundation. An applicant must be entering college or a technical/trade school in autumn 2017.

The foundation will award $1,000 scholarships to students who have been selected based on their financial need, academic achievement, and personal statements. VMDAEC will send scholarship funds directly to a recipient's chosen educational institution for help with tuition, room and board, student fees, or book purchasing. Successful applicants will be notified no later than May 31, 2017.

Applicants can access the application and guidelines under the Community Resources tab at www.vmdaec.com. For more information, contact Nina Jacobs at scholarship@vmdaec.com.

Residents Asked to Adopt a Fire Hydrant to Help in Case of Emergencies

A snow covered fire hydrant that firefighters can't find in an emergency could be disastrous, so the Prince William County Department of Fire and Rescue has a program for county residents to help keep fire hydrants cleared of snow and ice.

The Adopt a Hydrant Program offers civic-minded residents the chance to keep hydrants clear during the winter. The Fire and Rescue Department pushes the program as the snowy weather approaches, said Robert Wall, the department's publication education coordinator. "As we get into winter, we have to be aware that when we start getting a significant amount of snow, the fire hydrants get blocked. That hinders emergency crews. When you call us for a fire and a fire hydrant is blocked with snow and ice, it's very difficult. They have to clear that before they can get to your situation in some cases," Wall said.

Adopting a fire hydrant is a simple task, Wall said. All people have to do is visit the Prince William County Department of Fire and Rescue's Facebook page (<http://www.facebook.com/PWCDFR>) and leave a comment or visit the department's website (<http://www.pwcgov.org/government/dept/fr/pages/df-and-adopt-a-hydrant-program.aspx>) for an application. People can also contact Wall directly at 703-304-9771 or rwall@pwcgov.org. Once the application is completed, the department will issue a certificate that can be taken to Home Depot and exchanged for a tall, flexible, orange, snow stick to place into the ground near the hydrant as an additional measure to help emergency crews find the hydrant.

The department asks that people participating in the program keep the snow and ice cleared by three feet around their adopted fire hydrants.

People who adopt fire hydrants will have the chance at a prize at the end of the snow and ice season, Wall said. "At the end of the year, Home Depot is going to take all of the certificates that they got back and do a drawing for gift certificates."

Wall said the department wants the fire hydrant adoptions to be fun. "We're having a little photo contest when you adopt your fire hydrant. We want to see what you're doing with your fire hydrant. We encourage you to get the whole family, the kids and everybody involved in this possible lifesaving fun event."

Know Who Maintains and Plows Your Road

With potential snow in the forecast, it's important to know who maintains the roads for plowing purposes. The Prince William County Geographic Information Systems, or GIS, Division recently updated the road closure application to include road maintenance information. Residents can now visit www.pwcgov.org/roadinfo to see which organization or jurisdiction is responsible for taking care of each road in the county.

"There is a new section in the application showing who the responsible party would be to maintain those roads," said Malcolm Echaluze, GIS Administrator. "It shows, for example, if the road is maintained by the Virginia Department of Transportation, or the county or the towns, or if it's privately owned or maintained."

The application also shows phone numbers for those organizations responsible for the road maintenance, such as snow plowing, pothole repair or other road work. The roads on the maps are color-coded so people will be able to easily tell who they should contact for road issues. "If there are particular roads that people happen to be driving on and perhaps there's a pothole issue or another service related issue, they would know exactly who to contact or who the responsible party is. That way they're not left to figure out who's supposed to be taking care of it," Echaluze said.

In order to see the road maintenance information, the user must click on the icon of the triangle with the exclamation point. To see a specific road, users can zoom into the appropriate area or use the search feature.

Go to www.pwcgov.org/roadinfo to see road maintenance information, current road closures and to sign up to receive road closure notifications.

New Library Cards Designed by Local High School Students

What's in your wallet? Hopefully a new library card! Prince William County Public Library cards have a new and unique look to celebrate the library system's 65th anniversary. The cards were designed by three Prince William County high school students, whose designs won through a contest held by the library system. The design that received the most votes from the public is featured on the full-sized library card. The design from the two runners-up is featured on the library card key chains.

Library Communications Manager Andrew Spence said there were entries from most of the area's high schools. "The competition allowed high school students' artwork to be submitted from all over the Prince William area. After all the submissions were collected, eight library designs were presented to the public to vote on their favorites."

Megan Mellenkamp, the first-place winner from C.D. Hylton High School, said she got an assignment to create a design for a library card in art class and entered her design at the suggestion of her art teacher.

Meredith Seaberg, a runner up representing Osbourn High School, said was excited for the opportunity to participate in the contest. "I really wanted to do it because I like art, and I like the library. I hope people like it."

Justina Ahinakwah, a runner up from Forest Park High School, said she liked the idea of a contest and new cards for a couple of reasons. "It means a lot to me. As an artist, I'm trying to grow and become known, so this is a big step for me. I also think it was a good idea because the cards needed to be more creative."

Just before a ceremony to honor the three winners, Library Board Chairman Brian Murphy traded in his old card for one of the new ones. Murphy told the winners during the ceremony that their contributions to the library system would be around for some time. "So 15, 30 years from now, some old timer will be carrying a picture one of you three created and that is awesome."

"It was an excellent way for teenagers to engage in an approachable way with the library system," Murphy said of the contest after the ceremony. "These kids have left their mark on this community."

The new library cards are available now at all library branches, Spence said. "We welcome everyone to come to the library and get their new library card. Especially since the library will only have a limited supply for this limited-edition card," he said.

NOVEC is Accepting Applications for Youth Tour

Northern Virginia Electric Cooperative is accepting applications from area high school and home-school students for the annual National Rural Electric Cooperative Association (NRECA) Youth Tour, June 11-15, 2017, to see government in action.

NOVEC will select five high school sophomore and junior students who are interested in government and history. Students will be selected based on their grades, a written essay, and short interview. Their parents or guardians must receive electric service from NOVEC.

The selected students will join more than 1,500 students from across the nation in the all-expenses-paid tour. They will visit Capitol Hill, museums, memorials, and historic landmarks, and they will be treated to a special evening event.

In February 2018, the students will join the Commonwealth's other Youth Tour delegates for a day at the Virginia General Assembly in Richmond. They will meet with their local legislators, and attend committee hearings and sessions in the House of Delegates and Senate.

To learn more about the Youth Tour and download the application, visit www.novec.com/youthtour or email a request to youthtour@novec.com. The deadline for applications is Feb. 17. The National Rural Electric Cooperative Association, NRECA, represents more than 900 consumer-owned, not-for-profit electric cooperatives in the United States. For more information about the NRECA Youth Tour Program, visit www.youthtour.coop.

Celebrating 30 Years at Manassas Senior Center

Judging by the way the Manassas Senior center fills up every day, it's a popular place to be and has been for the last 30 years. On the afternoon of Wednesday January 18th, people got together at the center to celebrate the 30th anniversary with cake and punch.

Prince William Supervisor Marty Nohe spoke to the seniors during the event and said the senior center would not have been built if not for the foresight of the contemporaries of those who use it today. "It was your generation that was saying 30 years ago, 'We need this for our future.' Now you are here getting to take advantage of the vision."

Sarah Henry, the director of the Area Agency on Aging, said it is the people who use the senior center who make it a special place. "You are the reason that we are here every single day, and you are the heart of this senior center."

Susan Gilbert, the site manager for the senior center, said people who come to the senior center come for different reasons, including having the opportunity to meet new people and make friends, finding their way out of grief or loss, or because their loved ones told them they needed to get out more. "You all come for different reasons, and that's what makes it such a wonderful center. Every person that comes to this center brings something special. You may not think so, but you do."

Maureen Guillot and Kathleen Frampton, two friends from painting classes at the senior center, said the place means a lot to them. "We make friends," Guillot said. "It's a special group. It's a wonderful place to come to."

Frampton, who taught art for 30 years in Prince William and Fairfax counties, said she gets a kick out of the senior center. "Someone is always saying something fun or silly. It's a lot of laughs."

Gilbert, who has worked at the senior center for 28 years, said the age of people who use the senior center ranges from 55 to 101 years old. Over the years, Gilbert said, people have become more health conscious and that has changed some of the programs offered at the center. "The biggest change that I've seen is that people are concerned about their diet and health. They come for fitness and exercise and to participate in dance classes. I've seen a huge swing toward people being more healthy and fit."

Still some things have remained the same, Gilbert said. "We've had bridge and ceramics as long as I've been here. We still have table tennis and billiards."

Gilbert also said the senior center wouldn't have been able to operate over the years without the volunteers who do everything from attending to the front desk, to teaching classes, to delivering Meals on Wheels. "We have a very small staff, and we rely heavily on volunteers. Everybody has something to share, something to offer and our center would not operate without volunteers."

For more information about the senior centers and other Area Agency on Aging programs, visit www.pwcgov.org/aging.

County Works to Mitigate Potential Flooding

Possum Point Road is less likely to flood during a major storm since Prince William County, the Town of Dumfries and the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service (USFWS) teamed up to restore 400 feet of Dewey's Creek upstream from a culvert passing under the road near the Prince William-Dumfries line.

Tom Dombrowski, environmental engineer with the Prince William County Department of Public Works, said the county was already at work on a stream restoration design at Dewey's Creek when the USFWS determined that the culvert that lets the creek pass underneath Possum Point Road was a potential problem.

The Possum Point Road culvert, Dombrowski said, was clogged with sediment and represented a hazard to property and the road because it was likely to cause flooding under severe storm conditions. "The USFWS and the town wanted this culvert passage to be clean and clear. Since we're doing a stream restoration design all the way from Route 1 coming down to Possum Point Road, a partnership between us was created."

A USFWS press release stated that potential damage from flooding over Possum Point Road caused by a combination of excessive water and a blocked culvert could cause an estimated $3.13 million in emergency repairs for Prince William County and the Town of Dumfries. "They considered it a fish obstruction, and also considered it a potential infrastructure hazard," Dombrowski said. "So, if a major storm event occurred, they believed that the obstruction could have created a situation where the creek could have overtopped and flooded the road. If that happened, it would strand everyone from Dominion Power and all those homes east of Possum Point Road Dewey's Creek Culvert. This could also prevent access for any emergency vehicles to the stranded citizens."

The project was funded in part by the USFWS through the Hurricane Sandy Disaster Relief Act of 2013. The service provided a $297,000 grant to the Town of Dumfries, which passed the money on to the Prince William County Department of Public Works, which managed and completed the project with another $300,000 from the county.

Prince William County, along with the rest of Virginia and several other surrounding states, is in the Chesapeake Bay Watershed and is governed by the Environmental Protection Agency regulations. Those regulations dictate how much sediments are permitted to flow into the bay daily from a given area. It is the responsibility of local governments, like Prince William County, to meet federal and state regulatory requirements through projects such as stream restoration. While jurisdictions are bound by law to pay for the projects, the county Department of Public Works has been able to take advantage of several grants to help pay for a number of projects across the county.

For more information about stream restoration or information on how you can help with stream issues, please contact the Prince William County Department of Public Works, Watershed Management Branch, at 703-792-7070.

Universal Human Rights Day Program Rescheduled for Feb. 9

Due to inclement weather Saturday, January 14, 2017, the Human Rights Commission has decided to postpone its celebration of Universal Human Rights Day. The celebration will be held on Thursday, February 9, 2017, at 7 p.m. in the Board Chambers of the McCoart building.

The event is free and open to the public. People planning to attend should RSVP to the Human Rights office at 703-792-4680 or email pwhrc@pwcgov.org. More information about the Prince William County Human Rights Commission and the Human Rights Office can be found on the County's website: <http://www.pwcgov.org/government/dept/hrc/pages/default.aspx>
